NOW THE CONSTABLES, AND STILL THEY COME!

STILL ANOTHER SEQUEL TO SUMMA'S DISAPPEARANCE.

OFFICERS OF THE LAW DISAGREE.

Constable Phillips Wanted to Levy on Constable Roland's Household Goods—The latter Bounces Him.

THE HERALD has already published half a dozen sequels to the sudden disappearance of Bailiff Constable Paul Summa, and it was thought that the series had run out, but yesterday there were developments which threaten to add more chapters. The constable's sale, objection, to the transfer of the license Summa left behind, and the suit against the constable who made the sale by creditors who tried to make the officer pay the amount of their claims, were all dealt upon at length in last week's paper, but yet the material for discussion and writing is not exhausted. Yesterday the lawyers made arguments for and against the transfer of the license at Pottsville and the Judge is holding the case under advisement.

But the subject matter of renewed interest hinges upon something entirely new. Two Constables figure as the principals this time. It seems that after Constable Roland made the levy on Summa's place he learned that half a barrel of gin was secreted in a neighboring house. An execution was issued in the interest of one of the creditors and Roland searched for the gin. He found it under some ashes and rubbish in the cellar of a building at the rear of that in which Summa had his saloon. Roland removed the gin to his own house and now has it there under the execution that was given him.

Yesterday afternoon Constable Phillips and an assistant walked into Constable Roland's house and demanded the half barrel of gin by virtue of an execution issued on a judgment against Paul Summa and in favor of Solomon Haak. Roland refused to deliver the gin on the ground that it was already under execution. Phillips said that as the execution was against Roland he would levy on the gentleman's household goods if the gin was not surrendered. Roland warned Phillips not to make a levy before giving a bond to indemnify him (Roland) against loss. Phillips intimated that he did not take any stock in the bond proposition and took pencil and paper from his pocket to make an inventory of Roland's household goods.

Roland became wrathful. He glared at Phillips and his assistant and ordered them to give him a bond of indemnity or get out of the house. Phillips paid no attention, but proceeded to note some of the goods he intended seizing. Roland walked to and fro for a few moments and then yelled, "Tally, you give me a bond, or get out!" Phillips paid no attention and Roland opened the door. "Get out!" yelled the latter. Phillips kept on writing and in a moment there was a rush, push and a hubbub of exclamations. Phillips and his assistant went through the doorway, Roland shut the door and locked it, the second ward constable and his assistant walked up the street and in a few moments the neighborhood was once more quiet.

Now the public is wondering what development will next arise from Summa's disappearance. Up to date all hands have been having a regular monkey and parrot time of it, but at this writing there have been no calls for ambulances, although the tunnel between the constables yesterday almost led to that emergency.

A YOUTH AND A ROPE.

Several people who had occasion to cross Main street the other evening narrowly escaped tumbling into the mud. They would look down to the crossing in a puzzled way, but could only see an innocent-looking rope. It was finally concluded that the rope had some mischievous instrument at its end. Last night Constable Roland found a youth 18 years of age at the rope's end and arrested him. The fellow said his name was John "Coleman," but it is really John Flynn, Chief Burgess Burns thought the fellow was too old to devote time to such foolish pastime and imposed a sentence of five days in the lock-up. Flynn's trick was to give the rope a sudden jerk when people would step upon it, and several times he almost threw pedestrians into the mud.

The Proposed New Hall.
Considerable interest is manifested in the hall which it is said the camps of the P. O. S. of A. of town propose building, and many inquiries are being made as to the location and probable completion of the structure. The committee having the affair in charge met last night. The meeting was a secret one and nothing was given out for public information, but it is understood that no definite arrangements for the project have been made.

Interest in the teachers' contest keeps at a high notch and is the leading topic of conversation. During the past few days the business men have taken a marked interest in the contest and it is said that many of them will be doing something substantial for their respective favorites within a few days. The contest between Helen Wasley and Stein is now the absorbing feature of the competition with the public and every night the HERALD is eagerly sought in the anxiety to learn which of the two ladies is in the lead. This particular contest is of the second kind. On one day Miss Wasley holds second place and the next day Miss Stein forges ahead. On Saturday Miss Wasley lost, on Monday she regained it, to-day she lost it again.

But there is another interesting feature of the contest and that is the competition between the teachers in the fourth, fifth and sixth positions. The teacher who holds the first of these positions at the close of the contest will be given a free excursion to Niagara Falls. At present Miss Connelly holds it and Miss Fairchild and Mr. Williams are close behind her. For a time Miss Connelly was many hundreds ahead of the other two teachers, but she is no less than a thousand and the three competitors are getting quite close to each other.

PERSONAL.

Sheriff Wolf was a visitor to town to-day. M. Morrison went to Pottsville this morning.

William Waters spent to-day at Mahanoy Plane.

David Perkins, of Mt. Carmel, was a visitor to town yesterday.

J. J. Franey and John F. Higgins spent yesterday at the county seat.

Mrs. Jere. Borgey and Mrs. George Holvey spent to-day with friends at Pottsville.

Samuel Cobley, of North Main street, moved his family to Mahanoy Plane to-day.

Mrs. T. J. James, of town, and Mrs. Wm. Brown, of Girardville, went to Ringtown to-day to visit friends.

Rev. Robert O'Boyle, of the Trinity Reformed church, has returned from his visit to the City of Brotherly Love.

Thomas Davidson, traveling salesman for Seligman & Co., Mahanoy City, circulated among our business men to-day.

Misses Fannie Grubler and Cora Sterner, students at the Kutztown State Normal school, are home on a short visit.

Miss Mary Jane Hopkins, of North White street, wishes to thank the friends who aided her to secure the gold watch in the contest connected with the fair of the Liberty Band, of Wm. Penn.

Thomas Reese, son of Edward Reese, of Centralia, has almost recovered from his recent indisposition, and expects shortly to resume his position as outside foreman of Centralia colliery.

Will Not Fight.

Several weeks ago it was announced that William Gibson and John Donohoe, the coal pugilists who have already had some experiences in the ring, had been matched to spar ten rounds with light gloves. The affair was to have taken place at Robbins' opera house during the first week of the present month, but for some unknown reason was postponed indefinitely, with the understanding that a date would be agreed upon. Since that time several inquiries have been made as to when the match would come off. It was learned last night that Gibson has gone to Wilkes-Barre to train Harry Jester for a fight, and the former's match with Donohoe will not be carried for some time. Some of the sports say the two men will not appear against each other in the ring again.

Died at the Hospital.
John Buchanan, of Gilberton, died suddenly at the Miners' Hospital Monday evening. He was at the hospital under treatment of a badly lacerated finger, and while sitting in the reading room died suddenly from heart affection. The deceased was unmarried, and about 58 years of age.

We have many friends who have lived to the ripe old age of eighty; they always used Dr. Cox's wonderful Cough Syrup when afflicted with cold.

RESISTED ASSISTANCE!

MRS. SAPOWICZ ATTEMPTS SUICIDE AT TRENTON.

IT WAS HER SECOND ATTEMPT

The Persistent Suicidal Efforts Are due to the Woman's Mind Being Affected After a Serious Illness.

MRS. MAGGIE SATO who made a desperate attempt to end her life on the Lehigh Valley railroad near Trenton at an early hour this morning. The woman stationed herself on the track and remained there notwithstanding the approach of the first freight train that runs between Parkerton and Mount Carmel.

The train was running at a rapid rate, but fortunately the engineer discovered the woman in time to bring the train to a standstill before it reached the place where the woman was crouched upon the track.

The engineer and fireman took hold of the woman and pulled her from the track after considerable trouble. The woman fought like a maddened animal and pleaded in her native tongue to be allowed to die. While the crew of the train were considering the advisability of placing the unfortunate woman on the engine and bringing her to the town some friends arrived and took charge of her.

Mrs. Sapowicz is the same woman who tried to take her life near the Trenton station, one afternoon a few weeks ago. The woman had a serious illness about four months ago and since that time her mind seems to have been affected.

Advertisements in the HERALD.
Yesterday was the first day of spring. Many business changes will occur in this town on April 1st.

Keep your promises in a healthy condition. The welfare of your family demands it. Pottsville will have no base ball team this season. The Y. M. C. A.'s have decided not to reorganize.

William L. Williams, of Frackville, had one of his hands mangled while coupling cars at Mahanoy Plane.

The Girard Estate has several desirable farms to rent. See advertisement in another part of to-day's paper.

Ex-Four Director William Brown has been appointed fireman at the court house, vice Charles Graver, resigned.

The teachers of Girardville will hold a teachers' institute on Friday and Saturday, County Superintendent Weiss will be present.

The steam and air riveters of the Pottsville Iron and Steel Co., are on strike because the company wanted them to work by contract.

Andrew Sweeney, a confirmed drunkard, of Morris, was found at Mill Creek, between St. Clair and New Castle, Sunday morning, in a drunken stupor, and shortly after died.

The Coal and Iron Police force throughout the county are making energetic war against tramps. Over a dozen of these undesirable pilgrims have been lodged in jail within the past few days.

That shabby piece of military headgear now worn by the National Guard is coming in for a good deal of deserved ridicule. One writer suggests that the gray hats should be collected and reared in a monument to the man who proposed them for military purposes.

The First Trip.

The first electric car built in Schuylkill county made a trial trip Monday afternoon over the road of the Schuylkill Traction Company, for which company it was constructed at Garner's iron works, Ashland. The car is to be used by the construction force and if occasion demands it can be attached to trail cars when traffic is heavy.

The car is painted a bright yellow, the platforms are extra wide, and there are ladders on each side to get to the roof where workmen can ride. Another car of similar design is near completion.

Buried To-day.

The remains of John and Michael Donnelly, who met their death by the explosion of boilers at West Bear Ridge colliery Monday, the particulars of which have been published in the HERALD, were interred at Frackville this morning. High Mass was celebrated in the Catholic church at Mahanoy Plane. The deceased each leave a wife and two children.

EXAMINATION OF MINERS.

An Effort Being Made to Repeal the Existing Law.

Representative Flannery, of Luzerne county, who represents a mining constituency and is closely identified with the mine workers of his district, has introduced a bill in the Pennsylvania Legislature to repeal the "Anthracite Miners' Examination Act." The Act that Mr. Flannery desires to have repealed was intended to keep ignorant Hungarian and Italian labor out of the anthracite mines, and thus lessen the number of accidents. In this it failed, and it has increased the number of Hungarians and Italians working in the mines. Instead of being a safeguard to English speaking miners, it imposes on them an unnecessary tax and fills the mines with men ignorant of the language and the dangers attending mining. Its effect is to increase the trouble it was to relieve.

The law makes it impossible for an American, Englishman, Irishman, Welshman, Scotchman, or German to secure work as a miner in any anthracite mine in Pennsylvania, unless he will work two years as a laborer, no matter what qualifications as a miner he may possess. No American, English, Irish, Welsh, Scotch or German miner will submit to this two years' extra apprenticeship and as a result the undesirable classes have the field all to themselves. Sometimes these people serve two years as laborers before asking for miners' certificates, but not often. Usually they either use some certificate for a number of years, or they lie about their experience. Even after serving two years as laborers many of them are too ignorant to be truthfully called miners.

"An instance of the peculiar operation of this law," says the Colliery Engineer, "came under our notice shortly after its passage. A certificated English colliery manager, named John Linnere county. He held, not only first-class government certificates, but also recommendations of the highest order as regards character and ability from his former employers, who were among the most prominent of the British colliery owners. He naturally first sought employment as an official, but such an opening not presenting itself at once, he determined to seek employment as a miner, feeling sure that his skill and ability would soon earn for him promotion to an official position. When he sought employment as a miner, he found that the Examination Act would not permit any superintendent to employ him. He then called on us, introduced himself, showed his papers, and asked if we could help him to secure employment in some other field. Just at that time one of our subscribers, an operator in the West, asked us to assist him in securing a thoroughly competent underground superintendent. We placed him in communication with the Englishman, and the result is the latter is now underground manager of the several collieries operated by the Western man, and is giving satisfaction. Under the provisions of this law, which Mr. Flannery is endeavoring to have repealed, this man could not secure work at any anthracite colliery in Pennsylvania as a miner."

Spring Trade.
Our merchants are busily engaged in arranging their annual display of spring goods. The indications point to a brisk trade; but there is one thing necessary to ensure this trade, and that is to communicate with purchasers through the one and the only legitimate channel—the newspaper. Every business man in this town, who desires to dispose of his goods, should take advantage of the HERALD's large circulation and inform the people of the inducements they have to offer. Our circulation has now reached enormous proportions, augmented by the unprecedented interest taken in the teachers' popular contest by the residents of this valley, thus making it the best advertising medium in this section of the state. The leading firm of Pottsville, Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, appreciate this fact by the insertion of a large display advertisement. Each day brings additional evidence of the HERALD's popularity among the reading public, and a small want "ad," placed in an obscure portion of the paper, will bear fruit within twenty-four hours. Advertise your wares, and advertise them in the people's choice—the EVENING HERALD.
